Rodriguez' Store has been incorporated with a capitalization of $8,000.

Two thoroughbred young white leghorn roosters for sale. Apply to the News man.

A Japanese cane feeder was fatally crushed in the machinery at Puunene Mill on Wednesday.

Maui has had a taste of shivery weather this week which has been a very good imitation of winter.

In accordance with a "By Authority" issued by Governor Carter, the legislature will meet February 15.

The Graziers' Association in Honolulu have agitated the proposition of reducing the wholesale price of beef.

Ask for and insist upon getting Primo Lager. Its purity is guaranteed. Sold everywhere about the Islands.

A forest reserve on Maui consisting of our most valuable cabinet woods is a consummation to be most devoutly wished for.

Work has been commenced on the new City Market, and the ground is being leveled for a cement floor, twenty by forty feet in area.

The Ladies' Guild of Wailuku will meet at the residence of Mrs. G. B. Robertson on next Tuesday afternoon, January 24, at the usual hour.

Rubroid Roofing has the reputation of being an absolutely water proof and durable roofing. Write to Lewers & Cooke, Honolulu, about it.

Seeds of the milo tree, one of the most beautiful woods of Maui, can be had free upon application to Brother Frank at the Catholic Mission School in Wailuku.

The Iroquois touched at Maialaea Bay on Tuesday, and on Wednesday Capt. Niblack drove across to Kahului to make investigations of the Kahului Harbor.

The Baldwin Kindergarten at Lahaina gives a concert this evening in Lahaina, and judging by the numbers on the program it will prove a treat to music lovers.

Once more the News urges that the land holders on Maui plant papaya, mango, pear and orange trees in their door yards and spare grounds. It pays.

Articles of incorporation of the Maui Publishing Co. have been filed with the Territorial Treasurer, and a meeting of the directors was held in Wailuku last night.

There was a rush at the office of the Superintendent of Water Works on Monday to pay water rates for the ensuing six months, as that was the last day of grace.

Our local business men are making a mistake not to advertise liberally in the News. It is a paying proposition to do so, mossbacks and back numbers to the contrary.

Upon the sale and transfer of the News, Wailuku merchants should wake up, rise to the situation and fill the paper with live ads. That would mean growth and business.

On last Saturday evening and Sunday the Chinese dedicated their Joss House on Vineyard street, to a ear-splitting accompaniment of firecrackers, drums and Chinese gongs.

It is claimed that the Territorial entomologists have secured an Australian insect which is a dead shot on the leaf hopper, and it would be well to secure some of them for Maui.

Investigations are being made looking to improvements in Kahului Harbor. A breakwater and railroad track to the side of a big wharf beyond the reef would be the proper thing.

The Chinese of the Gee Kung Tong Society entertain their friends at a swell Chinese dinner, all the dishes to be prepared Chinese style, at their temple on Vineyard street tomorrow evening.

Experiments on Maui by the News man, James Lindsay of Haiku and others have practically demonstrated that a cross between brown leg horn cocks and plymouth hens produce the most desirable fowl for the table and for eggs that can be raised.

It is known that the rubber tree makes luxuriant growth on East Maui, and if the experiment now being tried should prove that these trees yield a good annual output of merchantable rubber, there will be developed a large acreage of rubber trees extending from Huelo to Hana.

Want Hawaiian Woods.

Many of the finer grained and more valuable varieties of wood grown on the Islands have won a warm place in the hearts of cabinet-makers and lovers of rare and valuable woods on the mainland, and a steady and increasing demand for these woods is noticed.

Recently Brother Frank, principal of St. Anthony Mission School, Wailuku, who is something of an expert in rare island woods, received a letter from a prominent manufacturer of musical instruments in Cincinnati, asking for samples of the different woods grown here. In response to this request, Brother Frank has made a collection of thirty varieties, and will at once forward them. The following are the varieties to be sent: Koa, dark koa, light colored koa, koa lau nui, kamani, white kamani, (unubrella,) mao, hau, oiaa, ohia lehua, sandal wood, kukui, kahuli, kou, (very scarce,) variety ohia lehua, monkey poi, kolea, (scarce,) milo, (scarce,) lauhala, coffee, kopeika and kauila, (scarce.)

Some of these woods of rare value, such as milo, kou, kauila and sandal woods, are very scarce, while others such as koa, ohia and kukui are found in reasonable abundance. But all of the above woods grow on the Islands, and in reforesting our barren plains and hill sides, due attention should be given to planting the more valuable varieties.

One of the most valuable of these is the milo, which grows into a hard, fine-grained, pale rose colored wood, taking an exquisite polish, and adaptable to finishing where fancy woods are wanted. There are several of these trees of good size now growing at the Catholic Mission, the wood of which, if properly prepared for market, would be worth several hundred dollars. These trees are yearly loaded with seed pods, the seeds from which germinate quickly and in rank luxuriance, so that they have to be pulled up and thrown away to keep the ground beneath the trees clear. To illustrate the value of this wood, Brother Frank states that he was offered $20 for a stick of one of these trees which he had cut down, the stick being but little over a foot in diameter and not much more than six feet long. If the seeds from these trees were all gathered and planted on central Maui, the value of their timber twenty years from now would run up into the hundreds of thousands.

Sandal wood is better known, and it is believed that the government is taking steps to reforest the islands with this valuable wood. The kou is another rare wood, soft and dark brown when polished. It was formerly much planted along the sea coasts, but has been nearly exterminated by the ravages of a moth. Kauila, remarkable for close grain, hardness and weight, grows on dry slopes, and is still found in considerable quantities on Kauai. This is the wood from which the ancient Hawaiian warriors wrought their spears, a few relics of which may be found in collections of curios. Hawaiians still entertain a strong superstition concerning the kauila, and will not allow it to grow in their door yards, as they claim that it brings bad luck to the household. Kopeika, common on Maui grows at an altitude of 2,000 to 3,500 feet, and is valuable for fuel and cabinet work. It bark yields a red dye formerly much used by Hawaiians.

Intelligent study of the habitat of the many rare woods which will grow here, and energy in reforesting our bare plains and hill sides with the more valuable of these wood would result at the end of the next twenty years in adding millions to our natural resources, as well as increasing greatly the annual rainfall.

LAHAINA LINES.

Miss N. A. Holden announces a delightful entertainment, for the benefit of her school at Kindergarten Hall this evening.

The jubilant Japanese had another lantern procession last Saturday evening.

There was another wind storm on Monday.

It is understood that Mr. F. Kohler has sailed for Japan.

Miss A. Z. Hadley entertained several friends last Saturday evening.

The new buildings at Lahainaluna will be very handsome structures, and their attractive appearance is already quite apparent, even from a distance. It is thought that one of the buildings may be completed in six weeks. The plastering is already finished.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Mac Donald entertained Architect Kerr of Honolulu on Wednesday.

Rev. S. Kapu is succeeding very well in his new duties as instructor at Lahainaluna School. He now resides in the upper cottage on the hillside.

Mr. Guerrero, the new foreman of the Lahainaluna printing office, was formerly in the employ of the Honolulu Advertiser.

Several of the Lahainaluna boys spent their vacation in diligent work on the extensive grading around the new buildings. The entire cost of grading will probably be about $500. The present number of pupils at Lahainaluna is about 60.

Up Country Notes.

C. Nielsen, the civil engineer for the H. C. & S. Co. who has been quite ill the past week is greatly improved.

The steamer Nebraskan arrived at Kahului Thursday morning and will discharge, and take on a cargo of sugar for San Francisco. She has about 1000 tons of freight for this port.

The steamer Texan is expected in Kahului as soon as the Nebraskan leaves, which will probably be about Wednesday.

A Japanese who was working night shift at the Puunene Mill was fatally injured one night this week. While trying to clear the rollers, his lower limbs were drawn in and crushed. He died shortly after being removed to the Hospital. No blame is attached to those in charge as he was disobeying orders at the time of the accident.

Miss Fanning came up from Honolulu to take the place left vacant at the Puunene Hospital by the departure of Miss Romero.

Henry Daniels gave a luau at his residence last Saturday evening to celebrate his birthday. The table was prettily decorated and heavily laden with the various Hawaiian dishes. The luau was all that could be desired.

Mrs. Kirkland of Kahului accidentally fell from a chair and broke her arm Thursday.

The nights have been very cold here, lately the thermometer has registered 52 degree on one or two nights. Snow was recently seen on the summit of Haleakala but only lasted a few hours.
